I'm currently working on problems in inner model theory. I'm particularly looking at the core model construction in models of ZFC which contain various large cardinals. While I haven't done any work in the area, I'm also interested in class sized forcings.

My general interests include various other areas of set theory, logic and computer science including unprovability theory and reverse mathematics.